

RI Consignment Terms of Service

Thank you for entrusting your items to RI Consignment. All items received become the property of RI Consignment and will not be returned once we take possession. Items in good working order determined to have a list price of over $9.99 are listed for sale on eBay. Items that have listing value of less than $10 will be discarded or donated and will not be listed for sale due to the cost benefit of time it takes to list, price, photograph and store each item. We will make every effort to bundle items to increase the overall sale price, but we cannot guarantee all received items can be grouped. Items that are damaged, non-working, or have holes, tears, stains, smells, visible wear or damage will not be sold by RI Consignment and will not be listed for sale. Items that are determined to be fake or knock offs will not be sold on eBay and will be destroyed. We make every effort to recycle whenever possible.

Items we receive in sellable condition will be listed using best practices to describe, list, photograph and price items. We conduct research on each item to ensure that we list the item for a realistic and competitive price. Items that we cannot find competitive pricing for will be listed for sale at auction, at a starting price we determine to be fair and realistic. If the item does not sell in a reasonable amount of time, the price of the item may be lowered, or the listing may be altered to increase chances of selling the item. We reserve the right to adjust prices for items at our discretion to ensure that items sell within a timely fashion. All pricing is determined at our sole discretion. Items will remain in our inventory indefinitely with a portion of the proceeds donated to charity until the item is either sold or discarded. There is no time limit or guarantee an item will sell. Items with an expiration date will be discarded on expiration.

Donation percentages are then calculated based on the number of sellable items received. Please note, these percentages have been adjusted as of 1/1/2020 due to increased costs we have incurred from eBay and PayPal for listing fees, selling fees and final value fees.

- Up to 99 items in sellable condition, charity receive 20% of proceeds
- 100-199 items in sellable condition, charity receives 30% of the proceeds
- 200 items or more in sellable condition, charity receives 40% of the proceeds

The charity that is designated to receive a portion of the proceeds at the time of listing cannot be changed or altered once an item is listed for sale.

Should items become damaged, destroyed or otherwise unsellable while in our possession, we will not be held responsible for any loss of income you may have otherwise received had the item not been damaged. We make no guarantees that items will sell and if after a certain amount of time items are reduced in price to a point that it no longer becomes practical to continue relisting the item for sale, we may terminate the listing and donate or discard the item. In the event of a catastrophic event affecting items in our possession, we may make a donation to charities affected but we will not compensate for any losses that were beyond our control.
